Greenlee® Launches New Communications Website

Greenlee® / A Textron Company (NYSE: TXT) is proud to announce the launch of its new website dedicated to the Greenlee Communications product line at www.greenleecomunications.com. The new site will support its diverse product portfolio as it expands into new technologies.

“We felt it necessary to develop one site where our customers could visit to learn more about the broad range of products and services we’re developing in technologies like Ethernet, fiber, and xDSL” said Jason Butchko, Greenlee Communications Vice President and General Manager. “This new site will allow us to post content that educates and informs our customers about new product capabilities as we become more of a thought leader in the telecommunications and broadband markets.”

All product, support, resource, promotions and Where to Buy pages are available on the new Greenlee Communications website. Customers can view new product announcements, detailed product information, obtain reference materials, and find career opportunities.

Greenlee Communications recently launched the DataScout™ 10G, further adding to their DataScout family of Ethernet/Transport multi-protocol network analyzers. For more information about this product and many others, visit the new greenleecomunications.com!
