

BENDWORKS® SOFTWARE REFUND POLICY

BendWorks software licenses, available for purchase on our website, are downloadable, functional, and try-before-you-buy. Free trials are available from the Autodesk® App store to let you fully evaluate BendWorks software before you make a decision to purchase.

Please use the trial period to ensure that the software meets your needs before purchasing a license. BendWorks software is fully functional during the trial period; it does not require license activation to enable its primary functionality during the trial period.

If you purchase a license to BendWorks software, after your payment has cleared your license key(s) will become available. Once a license key is claimed by a user (typed in and activated in Revit®), BendWorks software will become available to the user with purchased subscription period, and no refunds will be given. During your trial period, our support staff is available to assist in any questions you may have. Because downloading the trial version is required prior to activating a license, we strongly recommend that all customers test the trial version of BendWorks software to its full extent prior to purchasing a license.

Refund Scenarios

Monthly subscription license key(s) are not refundable. However, the user may terminate the monthly subscription prior to the first day of the next monthly period without any additional fee.

For the annual subscription license key(s), in rare instances and only within thirty (30) days of purchase, if a customer mistakenly purchased the wrong number or type of licenses, Greenlee may, within its sole discretion, issue a refund, but only for licenses that have not yet been activated. In such instances, we require that you provide enough information for us to positively identify your purchase transaction (e.g., order number, your company name, date of transaction, purchase code, number of licenses purchased, etc.). If we are able to positively identify your order, and if your request is made within 30 days of purchase, Greenlee Customer Service will refund your purchase of license keys that have not yet been activated. In no circumstance will Greenlee issue a refund of an annual subscription license key in response to a request made more than thirty (30) days after purchase, for a license that has been activated, or if we are unable to positively identify your order.
